March 2021

President's Column

Can you believe March is here already? This picture of Lori and I was taken early last year during a hike in Pinnacles National Park, not long before a worldwide pandemic changed all of our travel plans and daily activities for most of last year. Now we can finally look forward to the start of a fresh new rally season at Gilroy in April. As more people get vaccinated, we'll likely see the public health guidance evolve. We will continue to keep any applicable COVID guidelines and precautions in place throughout the coming year, to ensure those who attend can safely enjoy our rallies.

The upcoming Gilroy rally in April was the first one to use NorCal's new online registration form on our website. Our Webmaster Carmen Ortiz spent a lot of time skillfully creating and testing the online form. We hope those of you who clicked the link found it an easy and intuitive way to register for the rally. With Lori's new role as Rally Registrar, I saw first-hand how quick and easy it was for members to sign up and pay, and for Lori to complete the rally registration process. If you haven't used online registration yet, I invite you to give it a try. You probably won't see the need to use paper coupons again, although that will still be an option. If you did use the online form, we welcome your feedback.

There has been a lot of great work going on behind the scenes the last few months to keep NorCal running, thanks to an awesome group of volunteers we have filling Board and Committee Chair positions. This certainly includes those who have volunteered as rally hosts and co-hosts.

We still have several rallies without hosts. Please look at the Rally schedule and let Rally Chair Pat L. know if you can volunteer as host. The virus still restricts most of our normal rally activities. Depending on the rally, hosting could be as simple as assembling and passing out welcome bags. You will still be helping out the Club, and our members will certainly enjoy being together in our Airstreams even if we can only gather in small groups.

While speaking of rallies, it is heartwarming that at least two new members have expressed interest in hosting our rallies, and I commend them. One of these couples signed up to host the Marina Rally with Carmen and Jose Ortiz, while the other has yet to be assigned to a Rally as an experienced member needs to step up with whom they can be paired. Feel free to let me and/or Pat know if you have any questions about hosting, or if you have ideas on how we can attract more volunteers.

Oh - I just heard some great news - An article on last year's NorCal Oregon Coast Caravan will be featured in the March 2021 edition of the Blue Beret!

Lori and I hope you all remain healthy, and we look forward to seeing you at a rally soon.

John Bibby

From The Editor

Everything eventually comes around again, and here we are, a year removed from the 2020 Napa Rally, our last “normal” rally where we had no clue as we stood side by side, crowding in for a group photo at Bay Area Airstream, that in less than two weeks, a pandemic would be declared, the State would be shut down for months, over 500,000 deaths would occur due to the virus, spread by breathing droplets and aerosols, and we would be wearing masks and social/physical distancing in order to avoid it.

But less than a year later, Ed and I rolled up our sleeves, got our vaccine shots, and after this past year of social and physical distancing, are breathing sighs of relief. I have heard the same thing from many of you who also, by this time, have been lucky enough to get the vaccine. But I am also aware that sadly, only 10% of the State as of this writing has been vaccinated, and that many who want it have not yet had the opportunity to get it. So it appears that discretion at our rallies still is the better part of valor to help stop the spread of the virus until we all have the opportunity to be inoculated against COVID. Hopefully in another month, many more will have access to the vaccine. And perhaps the counties, almost all of which are purple at this writing, will move into the less restrictive tier.

Excitement seems to be mounting for our first rally of the season in Gilroy. Most who registered did so via the online portal, whether paying by check or credit card. The registrar reported that her job was so much easier when people did so since the online registration automatically populates her spreadsheet with their responses and choices. Of course there is always one in the crowd – moi – who clicked on too many days, did not catch the inflated price when mailing the check, only later catching the mistake when checking in with the registrar to see how she was doing. I had to write a new check, but all is good now. So it pays to pay attention on what you are doing!

SPRINGTIME IN THE WOODS

May 5 - 9, 2021
McArthur, CA

Get ready for fun at Lassen RV Resort, a wonderful escape to nature, in a rustic camping resort environment surrounded by wilderness. Located on a lightly oak forested bench above the valley and close to Highway 299.

The RV park sits on 68 acres of beautiful wild forest lands located between Mt. Lassen and Mt. Shasta, in the peaceful Fall River Valley near quaint towns of McArthur and Fall River Mills. It is a lovely rustic setting for our next escape to nature.

In order to keep everyone safe, all rally activities will take place outdoors. We encourage everyone to gather in small groups at campsites, resort picnic areas and around the large propane fire-pit, while keeping appropriate social distancing. And please wear your masks!

There are lots of things to do inside and outside the resort. Equipment can be checked out at the office for free for tether ball, old fashioned horse-shoe pits (3 areas), volleyball and badminton, rustic golf chipping course and frisbee golf disks. The resort has picnic areas, a large propane fire pit to gather with your friends and many walking and mountain bike trails. There is free basic Wi-Fi and if interested, a premium connection is available for a nominal fee; please inquire at the office.

Of course, the best part of the Intermountain area is the great outdoors. Nearby attractions include state and national parks.

McArthur-Burney Falls Memorial State Park

A must see is the 129-foot Burney Falls: the centerpiece of this park. Walk the 1.3 mile loop around the falls. Perfect for photography, birding, wildflowers and nature. More information at www.parks.ca.gov.

Lake Britton

This State Park includes boat rentals and fishing on Lake Britton. More information at <https://camprrm.com/parks/california/ca-state-parks/mcarthur-burney-falls-state-park/>.

Lassen Volcanic National Park

Snow covered Mount Lassen is the centerpiece of this park, surrounded by volcanic and hydrothermal features. Trails and boardwalks to view boiling mud pots and steaming fumaroles, including the accessible trail at the Devastated Area. Although the park is open year round, many roads, trails and other attractions may be closed during winter and early spring time. For the most current information for winter/spring conditions, check this page:

<https://www.nps.gov/lavo/planyourvisit/spring.htm>.

Ahjumawi Lava Springs State Park

An exceptional landscape of lava flows, aqua bays and primeval beauty. The park is a wilderness area with extremely rugged lava rock—visitors should come prepared. This remote State Park can only be reached by boat. Be prepared! Learn more at www.parks.ca.gov.

Fall River Mills

Visit the towns in the area. They appreciate our business! In Fall River Mills, you can go to the Fort Crook Museum & Fort Crook Historical Society located at 43030 Fort Crook Museum Road.

The Fort Crook Historical Society was founded in 1934. It is dedicated to collecting, preserving and presenting the history of the Intermountain area. The Fort Crook Museum was built in 1962-65 entirely by generous donations of time and materials by members of the communities it serves and by members of the Fort Crook Historical Society.

And don't forget your golf clubs. The Fall River Valley Golf and Country Club is rated as one of the best golf courses in the nation. It offers pine and juniper forests, gleaming lakes, and a slight rolling terrain. More information at www.fallrivergolf.com.

GOT MOLD?

Springtime is upon us, and that hopefully means you will be using your Airstream, maybe staying overnight at the Gilroy Rally or going out on a trip of your own somewhere else. But camping or glamping in your Airstream also means the possibility of mold growing under your mattresses. Ugh but true!

As you sleep on your mattress, your body heat warms and increases the temperature of the mattress. Some of that heat radiates out of the top and sides of the mattress, but a lot of it radiates out of the bottom. This allows moisture from your body to be absorbed by your mattress, passing through the pores of the mattress, eventually getting to the bottom. According to research by a professor from the University of Florida, 25% of the moisture that the body produces during the night can be absorbed by your mattress.

The type of mattress type you use can exacerbate the problem. While memory foam mattresses are popular for their comfort, most are made of at least 60% polyester fabrics or plastics that are not known for absorbing moisture. Plus they are typically very dense, leading to less airflow, more heat retention, relatively hotter surfaces and thus, more moisture. To make matters worse, if the mattress itself is warmer than the surface the mattress is lying on (it usually is), that temperature difference causes moisture to condense at the bottom of the mattress. Of course, the more humid the environment, the bigger the problem, and the faster moisture accumulates.

Now, even at this stage, if the surface below your mattress is breathable, able to vent the moisture, the moisture will evaporate and eventually go away. However, if your mattress is on a base which is non-breathable, moisture will become trapped and eventually accumulate. When the moisture can't evaporate, that warm, moist, dark area under your mattress becomes the perfect silent breeding ground for mold, and mildew, a type of mold that only grows only on the surface of the wet area.

Since mattresses in our Airstreams rest directly on plywood or similiar type of flat hard surface, and these surfaces allow for little to no air circulation underneath, the perfect dark, moist environment for mold to grow is ever present under the mattresses in our trailers.

The thing with mold is that once it grows, the parts of it which remain unseen are far more than the parts you can actually see and remove. So, if the situation is not resolved, you could very quickly end up sleeping on a moldy mattress every night. It will eventually damage the wood surface under your mattress and could potentially threaten your health as the mold spores break off and become airborne in the closed environment of the Airstream. Unless you regularly check under your mattress, you may never know if this is happening. Many Airstreamers have personally experienced this situation or know people who have dealt with it.

The good news is that under-mattress mold growth is preventable. The best way to make sure that no moisture ever builds up under your mattress is to ensure 24/7 airflow underneath with an anti-condensation ventilation mattress underlay. This article discusses three solutions utilized by NorCalers that provide anti-condensation air flow under their mattress.

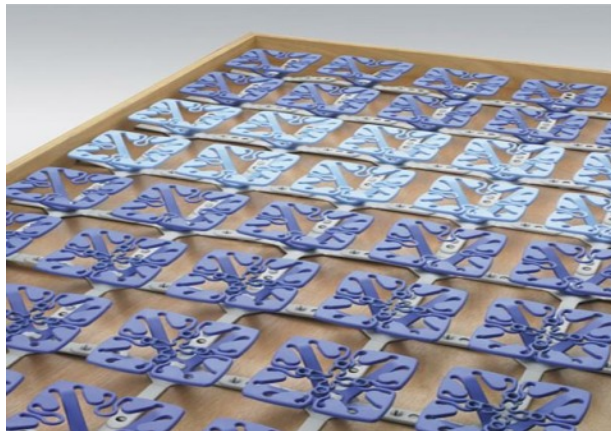

SOLUTION A

Solution A, and the most expensive by far, is a Frioli System. Froli systems consist of a mattress foundation made from individual plastic spring pads that are firmness adjustable. RVers typically get the "Star" system. "Each plastic spring is made from a very durable Hi-Tech thermoplastic elastomer. This material provides durability, memory, and precise flexing under load” according to the manufacturer. There is “some assembly required” with the system. A plastic base is attached via screws to the wood deck or base, after which the plastic springs are snapped into place atop the base. The springs elevate the mattress slightly above the deck, allowing air to circulate under the mattress and provide pressure relief to the mattress. If anything happens to the springs, they can be easily replaced.

Frioli System

The system is modular and can be sized to fit any size or shape sleeping surface, whether twin, queen, or something else. You can purchase the system through a dealer or online at <https://nickleatlantic.com/products/froli-star-sleep-system> and it is sometimes available on Amazon <https://www.amazon.com/Froli-19903-Star-Basic-Package/dp/B002BW7NA0>. The Star System can run $300-$500 or more depending on what components you purchase. If you are lucky, you may find discounts through a sales rep. Check with the Smithsons or the Minadeos who have purchased Frioli systems for their mattresses and are happy with their choice.

SOLUTION B

Solution B is the Den-Dry Mattress underlay by Raven-Wolf Marine, available on Amazon. https://www.amazon.com/Ravenwolf-Marine-Den-Dry-Mattress-Underlay-Queen/dp/B07BHJRDDG/ref=pd_lpo_263_t_0/131-0717421-7928401?_encoding=UTF8&pd_rd_i=B07BHJRDDG&pd_rd_r=c4636b4e-4576-4def-b803-89700050c7a0&pd_rd_w=MnQy3&pd_rd_wg=Uhlqt&pf_rd_p=16b28406-aa34-451d-8a2e-b3930ada000c&pf_rd_r=MRAS329C4088HJJ41S7J&pvc=1&refRID=MRAS329C4088HJJ41S7J

We purchased this item for our short queen and have been pleased with its performance. Den-Dry consists of breathable black felt fabric with rows of black spun polymer bulges attached underneath, looking much like a sheet of black ravioli..

Den-Dry (downside up)

The bulge material is spun recycled polypropylene. It is placed on the deck with the fabric side up. It does not crush and supports the mattress, adding some pressure relief to the mattress. The underlay comes pre-measured for your mattress size, but you must do some cutting if you purchase for a queen. The queen size comes in one piece, 120” long (10 ft.) by 39” wide. You cut the piece in half to make 2 strips, each 60” long, that lay cross-wise on the plywood deck. They fit the bed space perfectly. For the queen, you will need also to trim the radius corners.

The manufacturer claims “Cross Channels provide Superior Airflow” and there is a 3” flap for joining the two panels. We found cutting the fabric is a bit tricky but doable with very sharp scissors. You can staple the top of the piece to the top of the wooden decking to keep it in place yet allow the bed to be raised up when accessing the under bed areas. Or not as the case may be. An added bonus is that this product does not catch or scratch when someone is walking around the bed. Cost is typically $99.95 for the Queen size, $79.95 for one Twin, plus tax, but with free shipping. It has been sold on Amazon for $8 less at times during the past year.

SOLUTION C

Solution C is the Hypervent underlay, which consists of a similar breathable fabric to Den-Dry (but white), with a thick squiggly matrix of white polymer attached to the underside. There are several suppliers, but the best deal appears to be $9.99/per foot from this site:

Hypervent

From this supplier, it too is sold in 39" width and any length up to 50 ft., plus tax and shipping. For a short Queen, you will need 10 ft., cut in half and laid cross-wise on the wood deck like the Den-Dry. I'm told it too is tricky to cut with scissors but doable. Cost for a short Queen is about $100 plus tax and shipping.

Many people on Air Forums have suggested this as an option for avoiding under mattress condensation. However, unlike Den-Dry, where the polymer is formed in bulges with open channels of fabric in between, the polymer matrix covers the entire underside of the fabric and the sides of the underlay may catch or scratch a person walking around the bed unless covered with tape.

Additionally it is recommended that the sides be left uncovered, not up against a wall or covered by a heavy blanket, in order to facilitate air flow. (The same probably holds true for Den-Dry.) John Bibby purchased this option, as has Dave Wilson,. They both report satisfaction with their choice.

For the unsure, there are several U-tube videos covering the installation of each of these options. Hopefully you will never have the issue of moisture causing mold and mildew under your mattress. But an ounce of prevention, as I learned from my Mom, may be worth the proverbial pound of cure, ensuring you never have to replace your mattress due to mold growth on its underside.

In this issue, we have the summary and coupon for the May rally at Lassen RV Park up in McArthur, now being hosted by the Verdegaals. This is one of my favorite areas of the State, especially when Mount Shasta and Mount Lassen are both visible. AND NEWS FLASH: In a step toward normalcy, the Club will have catered take-out dinners available at this rally, so be sure to sign up for one or both. This is a first since the Napa rally a year ago.

This issue also features an article on dealing with that pesky mold under your trailer mattress and some solutions to deal with the problem. More than a few Norcalers have experienced the problem first hand.

Please take to heart the reminder concerning your photo in our Directory if you have not provided one, and the Airstream Club of Oregon sent out a message inviting others to any of their 35 rallies statewide. If you don't have other plans, heading up to Oregon for a rally might be a fun way to spend a week or two.

I will be attending the Gilroy Rally, so hope to see you there! And I'm still asking for ideas on items you find invaluable while Airstreaming and think others might want to know about.

Message From the Oregon Airstream Club

"The Oregon Airstream Club is hosting 35 rallies this year - admittedly pared down in style from past rallies, due to COVID, but it will be so great to see each other and get out of the house!

Registration has been open for Oregon members for about a month, so now we would like to open the rallies to registration from anyone else who would be interested in coming. There are seven (7) rallies scheduled at Oregon State Parks and the others are all at county, city or private parks, spread across Oregon from the eastern border to the coast. We also have rallies in SW Washington.

To see what we have to offer, you go to airstreamclub.org/oregon. Scroll down to "events" and click on a rally that interests you. Prices and descriptions are there for each one. You can pay online with Paypal or a credit card (this is preferred) or send a check to the host. There will be no shared meals at this point but if enough people get vaccinated, it may be possible to do some food later in the summer. We would love to welcome new people to Oregon. This is a very casual, informal, fun-loving group and our rallies tend to be quite unstructured, particularly now. So come join us if you can, we would love to meet you."

The Foreseeable Future of Airstreams

Flying Cloud 30FB Office

Airstreams are not for retirees anymore. Airstream is adapting to the pandemic and beyond by designing a Flying Cloud with an office for remote working, which facilitates ZOOM calls or other video conferencing work and notes with dry erase wall surfaces. Among other amenities. Called the Flying Cloud 30FB Office, it's a $107,500, 6,800 pound, 30-foot trailer with its own separate office area (that can also be used as a bed or nap room after unfolding the "easy chair."). Check out: <https://www.seattletimes.com/explore/careers/work-nomading-new-airstream-trailer-comes-with-office-space/>.

In surveys taken by Airstream, over half of respondents were self described "pandemic nomads" who planned to work remotely on the road and expressed a desire for trailers with offices. As the pandemic eases, it will be interesting to see how and if the current "work from home" mandates evaporate, bringing more workers back to the office, or if remote working continues on a permanent basis, allowing those affected to continue to work anywhere that has WI-FI. Airstream is betting that working remotely continues, while Amazon has been buying up lots of office space in various cities, with plans on bringing workers back to offices once the pandemic subsides. Flip a coin anyone? Campfire topic?
