

Sip of the Northern Mitt
The Leelanau Peninsula, Michigan
June 10-14, 2026

The Leelanau Peninsula, located in northwestern Michigan and jutting into Lake Michigan just north of Traverse City, is a scenic region renowned for its natural beauty, rich agricultural heritage, and vibrant recreational opportunities. Historically, the peninsula's unique microclimate—shaped by the surrounding Lake Michigan—created ideal conditions for fruit farming, which gradually evolved into a thriving viticulture industry. Since the 1970s, Leelanau has become one of Michigan's premier wine regions, home to more than thirty vineyards and wineries producing award-winning wines.

Beyond its vineyards, the Leelanau Peninsula offers a wealth of recreational activities. Visitors and residents alike enjoy hiking and biking through the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore, kayaking along crystal-clear inland lakes, and exploring charming waterfront towns like Leland and Suttons Bay. In every season, Leelanau blends its deep-rooted agricultural legacy with outdoor adventure, making it a beloved destination for wine lovers, nature enthusiasts, and vacationers seeking a quintessential northern Michigan experience.

The rally campground is located approximately 8 miles from downtown Traverse City, a regional hub for recreation, shopping, dining and craft breweries.

For those arriving early or staying late, here are some suggested non-scheduled activities as well:

Biking - Sleeping Bear National Lakeshore has 22 miles of a hard-surface multi-use trail (see link above); additionally Traverse City has excellent bike trails maintained by TART. One of the more fun trails is the Leelanau Trail from Traverse City to Suttons Bay. This 17 mile trail (34 mile roundtrip) starts in Traverse City or at one of the trailheads along the way. The Boardman trail is a shorter trail around Boardman Lake. Information on TART trails can be found at <https://traversetrails.org/>

Mission Peninsula - spend an afternoon exploring Old Mission, the smaller of the region's two peninsulas, that stretches 19 miles into Lake Michigan. Enjoy expansive fruit farms and views. There are world class wineries on the Old Mission, with tasting options. Some suggestions are Mari Vineyards, Hawthorne Vineyard, Brys Estate Vineyards (know for their reds), 2 Lads and Bowers Harbor. For a sunset with a glass of wine, stop last at Bonobo's Winery. The Mission Point Lighthouse is at the peninsula's tip, just yards south of the 45th parallel.

Golf - There are numerous golf courses in the region, some of which are truly spectacular. Consider Arcadia Bluffs, Elmbrook, Emerald Vale, Lochenheath, and the Grand Traverse Resorts three courses, The Bear, The Wolverine, and Spruce Run. Advance reservations are recommended. See <http://www.tcgolfguide.com> for more information.

Shopping - the villages on the Leelanau (Suttons Bay, Northport, Leland, Glen Arbor and Empire) all have lovely shops. Front Street is the place to shop in Traverse City.
